

Who is Kimberly Bryant?

Kimberly Bryant is an American Electrical Engineer who also works in the biotechnology field. In 2011, she founded Black Girls Code, a non-profit organization designed to help African American Girls learn to Code.

01.14.1967

Age: 56 years old

BLACK
GIRLS
CODE

Kimberly Bryant Quotes:

“When you’ve already experienced great challenges in your career, it gives minor setbacks a different perspective.”

“We need to really focus on getting this digital equity across the board in all of our public school systems, for both girls and boys.”

“You can absolutely be what you can’t see! That’s what innovators and disruptors do.”

Fun Facts:

- ◆ After founding the organization Black Girls Code, Bryant became listed as one of Business Insider’s “Top 25 most influential African-Americans In Technology”
- ◆ Kimberly Bryant grew up in Memphis Tennessee and attended Vanderbilt University
- ◆ In 2012, Bryant received the prestigious Jefferson Award for Community Service for her work to support Bay Area communities with Black Girls Code.