

MARGARET HAMILTON

Who is Margaret Hamilton?

About Her

Margaret Hamilton is an American computer scientist, systems engineer, and business owner. She was the director of the Software division at MIT, which developed software for NASA's Apollo Program. Hamilton also invented the term Software Engineer. In 1976, she started Higher Order Software, and in 1986, Hamilton Technologies, which are both software companies based in Cambridge Massachusetts. In 2016, Hamilton received the Presidential Medal of Freedom from President Barack Obama.